Energy as storage: Nepal's strategic advantage. Linking the themes of computational demand and energy supply, the conversation naturally turns to the challenge of energy storage. This is where Nepal's hydropower potential offers a distinctive advantage. The global energy race is not about supply--solar and wind energy are abundant.

The contribution of solar and wind energy is negligible in Nepal's energy mix, although these renewable energies were introduced in the early 1970s. Thus, there is also a need to understand the different development phases of solar and wind energy in Nepal to formulate required plans and policies for accelerating these renewable energies" adoption.
