

Which UPS is the best in Sucre

What is Sucre known for?

Sucre is known for its beautiful architecture. When walking through the streets, you'll easily get why this city is also often referred to as the "White City". There are plenty of historical landmarks and buildings that have a clean, bright-white colored facade. So, one of the best things to do is a stroll through the city and enjoy the atmosphere.

How to get around Sucre?

Getting around Sucre is pretty straightforward. Most of the best things in Sucre are in short walking distance from the city center. As we described earlier, start your city tour from the Plaza 25 de Mayo and spend your day walking around the city. Uber or other ride sharing apps are not available in Sucre due to the low demand.

What makes Sucre so special?

Sucre was probably the coziest, most beautiful, and laid-back city we visited during our month-long trip through Bolivia. What made it stand out, for us, was the beauty of adorable, white-washed colonial art buildings, and simply the local people who were some of the friendliest we've met.

What are the best districts in Sucre?

The best districts in Sucre are the Centro Historico and San Francisco. Both districts are central and in walking distance to most of the Sucre's attractions and sights. The Centro Historico is definitely the liveliest area with plenty of restaurants and shops, but also busy and noisy at times.

Is Sucre a good place to live?

But we still enjoyed our time in the city a lot. Temperatures in Sucre are mild and fresh at almost every time of the year. Bolivia is one of the highest countries on earth after all, and with its altitude of 2,790 meters (9,154 feet) Sucre is no different.

How to spend a day in Sucre?

Spend your first day in Sucre by taking a free-walking-tour through the city. You'll get to see the city's main square, visit the country's historic freedom house, stroll through the local Mercado Central, and hike to the Recoleta viewpoint.

I stayed in Sucre two weeks and came here everyday. Delicious coffee and extensive menu. Food is great too and came so quickly every time. It has a large co-working and sitting area upstairs with fast wifi. I spent many hours up there doing Spanish school homework. Best part is the staff. They remembered my name and were so friendly and kind.
