Why are air conditioners so popular in Brazil?

In Brazil, air conditioners are among the highest consumers of residential electricity. More frequent heat waves have led to increased sales, leading to higher household energy consumption long term. Household AC demand is projected to grow from 17% today to 80% by 2035.

What type of AC is used in Brazil?

Considering the scope of the current regulation, our analysis focuses on the most common type of ACs found in the Brazil-ian market: mini-split ACs, with a representative cooling capacity of 1 refrigeration ton (RT, equivalent to 12,000 Btu/hr or 3.5 kW).

Why is AC so important in Brazil?

AC already accounts for 14 % of electricity consumption in Brazil's residential sector, and this demand is growing by 5.4 % each year (EPE, 2018). In addition, the time of AC use coincides with peak load hours, demanding power generation from the most polluting and expensive fossil fuel thermal power plants.

Are solar AC units good for the environment?

Solar AC units offer environmental benefits, such as reducing grid demand and load shifting during peak usage. Plus, solar air conditioning units reduce energy costs and can help lower greenhouse gas emissions. Air conditioning units that cool your home with solar power can save money and help the environment.

What are the different types of solar-powered air conditioners?

The three main types of solar-powered air conditioners are direct current (DC) solar air conditioners, alternating current (AC) solar air conditioners, and hybrid solar air conditioners. Direct and alternating current refers to the way energy flows: DC only flows in one direction, while AC changes direction often.
